

Candle-making - a unique way to help build effective teams!

Team Building

Create the perfect candle, using natural, eco friendly waxes, fragrance oils and colourings.

Staff are shown a number of modern candle-making techniques by a professional candle-maker and trainer.

Then it's over to you! Working creatively in teams, design and make your own candle and packaging. Decide the ingredients, calculate manufacturing costs and profit margins, then produce a TV advert and promote your product to the other teams.

The finished products are then tested and marks awarded for originality and profitability! Delegates also leave with the candle creations they produce.

This simulates an end-to-end business process from the initial concept through design of product and packaging, manufacturing, quality control, marketing and promotion. It's an enjoyable team development activity, which relies on co-operation and teamwork to ensure the best results.

These sessions run for 3 – 4 hours

Ice-breaker Sessions

A great way to kick-start a company meeting!

A professional candle-maker demonstrates several types of candle-making techniques such as floating candles, beeswax, container candles, pillar and other creative candles.

Teams then agree which type of candle they are going to make.

At the end all candles are judged and points awarded for difficulty, creativity and overall success of the product!

The team, with the most points wins!

All colleagues take home a candle of their own making to remind them of the event!

Sessions run for 2 – 3 hours.

Company Parties

A fun and social way to get colleagues together for a couple of hours of candle-making – possibly before lunch or dinner and a glass of wine!

A professional candle-maker gives an overview of candle-making and then shows a number of techniques from regular pillar and container candles to ultra-modern designs.

Staff, with help from the trainer, then make their own candles for themselves, colleagues or friends and family!

Sessions run for 2 – 4 hours.

Events are held indoors at your company's premises, hotel or other venue – so no concern about the weather! There are three standard categories, which are perfect for both male and female colleagues. Alternatively we can create an event designed specifically to suit your company's needs including MBTI (Myers Briggs Personality Preferences). All materials and equipment are provided.
